

The story of the knot in the rope

A woman walks through a white room.

She finds a rope tied on the ground.

She takes this rope and tries to untie the knot.

The knot is too tight, she can't untie the rope.

Suddenly Iman arrives, who helps her untie the knot, but even the two of them cannot.

Here comes Haniel, descended from heaven.

They are now three on this rope desperately wanting to untie the knot.

Then comes Uriel, who also takes part in this mission.

Without waiting for them, Daniel and Joachim also appear before this incredibly difficult knot to untie.

They are then six each trying to undo this cursed knot.

The trumpets sound, Mikael descends from heaven.

Give me that damn rope, he said!

He too is incapable of untying the knot.

The seven are on the same rope when suddenly the clouds rise and let the light through.

A voice from heaven exclaims, I am Pon, the one and only Jah, throw this rope to me immediately.

The rope lifts itself and climbs to the sky.

The knot comes undone on its own as if by magic.

The rope falls to the ground.

The woman picks up the rope.

When she raises her head, there is no one there.

The woman sits on the ground with the rope in her hands.

She ties a knot in the rope.

The woman smiles.

Tying knots in ropes can be fun, untying them together will strengthen our bonds.
